In the interest of commerce, it is to be hoped that lota lines of boats will continue to ply between The Dalles and Portland We have only one railroad, and the boats afford some competition and help keep down freight rates. If there is not enough business for both boats, shippers should route less by the railroads and give more freight to the water lines. While the wharfage facilities at Hood River at low water make it inconvenient to use the boats to good advantage, perhaps if sufficient business was guaranteed, the boat lines could afford to provide wharfage close in.

MONKEY MOTHERS.

They Display More Pure Affection Than Any Other Animal. A wild beast tamer of long experience tells some interesting things of the affection of animals for their young. He had an elephant once, he says, who did all in her power to spoil her young one. She fussed over it and cuddled it up so that when the time came for it to leave the cage it was simply unmanageable. When one of the Oregon Federation of tabor as a the men made a bold move toward the baby he was promptly butted in the stomach and bowled over in a peculiar way which the youngster had of expressing his feelings toward those whom he disliked. At last by a ruse the mother and son were separated. But there was no such thing as keeping them apart. The baby rubbed the skin off its forehead and trunk trying to get through the bars, and both wailed so long and piteously that the keeper was obliged to put them together again.

A shy baby camel that passed through the hands of this same trainer refused to look upon the world except from its favorite station between its mother's legs. The mother, too, would show her displeasure at any effort toward intimacy by spitting, violently at every one in sight.

The kangaroo also is very fond of her offspring and will patiently carry it about long after it is ready to hop on its own account.

But for a display of pure affection the mother monkey beats any other animal, and when there is an addition to the family circle there is general fejoicing. A baby monkey sticks fast by its mother, and, asleep or awake, it seems always in her thoughts.
